Rebecca Rabin is an associate attorney with over seven years of experience in negotiations and regulatory compliance. She brings a diverse legal background to the Cinnamon Mueller team and works with Cinnamon Mueller's cable and telecommunications clients on regulatory and transactional matters, as well as programming and operations.

Practice Overview

Ms. Rabin's practice focuses on representing cable, wireless, broadband and landline telecommunications companies on an array of programming and transactional matters. She advises clients on broadcast retransmission consent and programming contracts and uses her keen eye for detail to analyze carriage rights and obligations to aid clients in standardizing channel lineups, creating new product offerings, and addressing programming issues that arise with system acquisitions. Ms. Rabin also assists cable, broadband, and telecom companies in assessing the impact of Federal and State legislation, FCC rulings and legal opinions on their business.

Personal History

Ms. Rabin joined Cinnamon Mueller in 2016 as an experienced regulatory compliance and litigation attorney who has spent years counseling clients on compliance with government regulatory requirements. She has coordinated with local city councils and concept committees in over 20 jurisdictions to bring clients' proposed business plans into compliance with local ordinances. Through prior positions with private law firms, as well as government entities like the City of Chicago and the Cook County Assistant State's Attorney's Office, Ms. Rabin has much experience negotiating on behalf of both public and private agencies. Additionally, she served as Legal Counsel for the House of Delegates in Palau where she drafted legislation including environmental protection measures and an increase in the minimum wage in coordination with a broad spectrum of government ministries. Volunteering at the Domestic Violence Legal Clinic, Ms. Rabin advocated for clients to receive orders of protection and other necessary safeguards. Throughout the course of her career Ms. Rabin has represented clients as first-chair in jury trials, arbitrations, and administrative hearings. As a result, she is an excellent communicator, effective collaborator, and creative problem solver on behalf of her clients.
